

Architecture in Transition: from Heritage to Urban Futures

7-15 May 2025

Palazzo Zorzi, Venice

I. CONCEPT NOTE

As new eras usher in profound and complex challenges, particularly regarding the social and functional degradation of many human settlements, the need for visionary architectural responses becomes increasingly critical in shaping the qualitative development of the built environment in a rapidly changing world.

The competition The Future of the Profession - Empowering the Next Generation in Participatory Urban Design offers young architects an opportunity to contribute with their vision for enhancing the experience of UNESCO World Heritage Sites. The result of this competition provides a valuable platform for dialogue on the evolving priorities of architecture and the architectural profession.

Taking this opportunity, the UIA will organise a series of events at Palazzo Zorzi – the UNESCO Regional Bureau for Science and Culture in Europe, in Venice, under the theme Architecture in Transition: from Heritage to Urban Futures.

The theme will branch into six lines of research, curated by both the commissioners and an extensive and international group of invited collaborators; their conclusions will be presented throughout the Congress:

4. Barcelona: World Capital of Architecture 2026

The UNESCO-UIA World Capital of Architecture label is recognised globally and is an acknowledgment that the city has always encouraged an approach to architectural production with values and efforts that are advocated by UNESCO and the UIA.

Every three years, UNESCO designates the host cities of the UIA's World Congresses as World Capitals of Architecture.

The city of Barcelona has been officially designated as World Capital of Architecture for 2026 by the Director-General of UNESCO, Audrey Azoulay. The designation was made on the recommendation of the Joint UNESCO-UIA Committee for the World Capital of Architecture that is presided by Architect Dominique Perrault.

“We are pleased to see the baton of the World Capital of Architecture title pass onto Barcelona for 2026. Barcelona will continue to elaborate on Copenhagen’s accomplishments – by conveying the way in which architecture and culture can respond to today’s challenges for the global public good and future generations,” said Audrey Azoulay.

In cooperation with the Consejo Superior de los Colegios de Arquitectos de España (CSCAE) and the Colegio Oficial de Arquitectos de Cataluña (COAC), the Municipality of Barcelona will facilitate a comprehensive programme of events, exhibitions, activities and ventures that clearly demonstrate and emphasise the value and importance of the contribution of architecture and urban design for the sustainable development of the City of Barcelona.
